Get to down to business

If you open Microsoft Store at work, you might see a category at the top of Home with your organization's name.

This means your organization has already picked out some apps for you, and this is where you can download them to your device. The apps might include common business tools, like Excel and OneNote, or internal resources, such as your HR app or an accounting program.
